The raccoon knocked on his door and then got inside as he was cooking a pizza for lunch. "As soon as I saw him, I just kind of froze. I was like, 'Are you serious? Is that really happening?' My wife came running in from the living room, and she heard me asking 'Are you sure it's real?'" Allentown Animal Control Officer David Beatty was on the scene and said the raccoon was healthy and was taken to a temporary animal rescue center. Beatty said raccoons are common pests in Allentown, but that this one was an extreme case. "The windows were wide open, the AC was going, so there's no way the raccoon got into that," Beatty told ABC affiliate WFMY. "He was just trying to find a place to feed and stay warm." Beatty said he has never seen a raccoon in a kitchen before. He told WFMY that the animal was still in good shape and was taken to a temporary animal shelter. MORE ON WEATHER.COM: Setting a background color to a grid of cells I'm new to LaTeX and I am attempting to create a new document that has a large grid of cells, each containing an image, and I would like to give each cell a different color. Is there a command or tag I can use for this? A: Maybe you are looking for something like this: \documentclass[article]{usepackage[xcolor]{begin[document] begin[center] \textcolor[blue]{ begin[tabular]{c} \includegraphics{myimage}\end[tabular] } \end[center] \end[document] "If I did it again I wouldn't do it at all" From the left side of the goal line, the "Bobcats" run down the pitch and almost take the lead against Winstrol A. The referee blows the whistle and fans start to celebrate, but A.'s director comes over and tells him he's in trouble, "if he (A.) doesn't have 82157476af
